REQUEST FOR RECONSIDERATION

Commissioner for Trademarks
P.O. Box 1451
Alexandria, VA 22313-1451

Dear Commissioner:

This is responsive to the March 10, 2005 Office Action.

Applicant requests reconsideration of the Examining Attorney final refusal to register STREAMLINE. A Notice of Appeal is being filed simultaneously herewith.

09-12-2005

U.S. Patent & TMO/c/TM Mail Rpt Dt. #77

BACKGROUND

The Examining Attorney made final his refusal to register STREAMLINE in association with fishing vests based on an allegation that the mark is likely to be confused with the mark in Registration No. 2350414. The '414 registration is for the mark STREAMLINE in association with "women's and girls' swimwear, leotards and girdles." In the Final Office Action, the Examining Attorney asserts that fishing vests and swimwear are "both items that may be purchased by sporting enthusiasts." Office Action, page 2.

The Examining Attorney's only evidence in support of this assertion comprises copies of web pages from the internet retail sites of three mega sporting goods stores. In this regard, the Examining Attorney attached copies of select pages from www.dickssportinggoods.com; www.modells.com; and www.fogdog.com. These online retailers offer an extremely wide variety of unrelated products that are purchased by a diverse group of people having widely varying individual sporting interests. Goods sold on these websites are used in a multitude of unrelated sporting activities including, inter alia, badminton, baseball, billiards, bowling, boxing, boating, climbing, cycling, darts, exercise, field hockey, lacrosse, hunting, fishing, football, golf, archery, hockey, skating, paintball, squash, rugby, running, skateboarding, skiing, snowboarding, soccer, softball, tennis, volleyball, wrestling, yoga, cheerleading, cricket, and many more. See Exhibits A, B and C, which refer to the general online directories of three online retail websites presented by the Examining Attorney.

Consumers are accustomed to large big box retailers of sporting goods offering a plethora of unrelated sporting products. They understand that these retailers sell products that are manufactured and supplied by many different third parties. Products are displayed in different departments within the actual stores as well as on the retail websites.

Regarding the goods at issue, those who shop for women's and girls' swimwear in a big box sporting goods retail store or retail website would find such items in the women's apparel department. Note that the different departments are listed on the left side of the retailer websites.

In contrast, a fishing vest shopper looks in the fishing department—not in the women's apparel area.

It is unapparent why the Examining Attorney thinks that an avid fisherman (i.e., a "sporting enthusiast") who buys a fishing vest would also be likely to purchase women's and girls' swimwear, leotards and girdles. Though swimsuits and fishing vests may be sold by the same mega big box sporting goods department stores, these items are sold in different departments. See the department listings of Exhibits A-C. In this regard, the law provides that products should not be deemed related simply because they are sold in the same kind of establishments. See Recot, Inc. v. Becton, 54 U.S.P.Q.2d 1894 (Fed. Cir. 2000) on remand 56 U.S.P.Q.2d 1859 (TTAB 2000)

Still further, although the Examining Attorney cited to internet retail websites of big box sporting goods stores, the swimsuits he presented are from brands like Speedo and Dolphin. In contrast, the fishing vests are made by Columbia, BW Sports Outfitters and Pflueger. Leotards are by Danskin. Consumers readily realize that big box retailers sell many differently branded items that originate with a wide variety of manufacturers. The Examining Attorney did not show a single manufacturer that makes both fishing vests and women's and girls' swimwear. The fact that such items might be sold within different departments of big box sporting goods stores confirms that confusion as to source is unlikely.

This case is analogous to Hi-Country Foods v. Hi Country Beef, 4 U.S.P.Q.2d 1169 (TTAB 1987), where it was found that prepared beef snack foods and fruit juices, though both food products, are completely different in character and would not be normally sold in the same sections of food stores and would not be expected to originate from the same source. Similarly, women's and girls' swimwear, though both potentially worn by sports enthusiasts, are sold in different types of specialty stores and in different departments of larger stores. The goods are unrelated in so many ways and have such different character and purpose that they would not be expected to originate from the same source.

The Marks Convey Different Meanings as Applied to the Respective Goods

Definitions for STREAMLINE obtained from dictionary.com are listed here:

1. To construct or design in a form that offers the least resistance to fluid flow.
2. To improve the appearance or efficiency of; modernize
3. To organize. To simplify.

See Exhibit D.

The first definition is suggestive of the nature of the goods of the '414 registration: "women's and girls' swimwear, leotards and girdles." Swimwear is designed to be smooth and sleek so that swimmers may move with minimal resistance in the water. Similarly, leotards provide dancers and gymnasts with a smooth, sleek appearance and enable freedom of movement without air resistance. Girdles likewise offer a smooth sleek appearance. In the context of the goods recited in the '414 registration, STREAMLINE has a definite, positive suggestive context.

No one would ever describe a fishing vest with its multiple pockets as smooth and sleek. A fishing vest is not in a shape to minimize resistance to fluid flow. Fishing, particularly fly fishing in which a vest is worn, is often done on rivers or streams. In this context, STREAMLINE weakly suggests use on a river or “stream.”

One would not mistake fishing vests for ladies and girls’ swimwear, or vice versa. One would not be likely to encounter both on the same shopping trip and, even if one did, because of the many differences in construction, use, and materials of the respective fishing vest and swimming suit products, it is highly doubtful that confusion would occur.

STREAMLINE Swimsuits Suggest Sleekness, Minimal Resistance and Flattering Appearance

STREAMLINE swimming suits for women and girls suggests sleekness and minimal resistance while swimming in water; it also suggests that a “thinning” or flattering appearance will be offered for a women’s figure (she will appear “streamline” in this sleek new bathing suit). Similar figure flattering suggestions are applied to STREAMLINE leotards and STREAMLINE girdles.

The Respective Goods Appeal to Different Genders

The goods in the cited registration are limited to women’s and girls’ swimwear, leotards and girdles. While no such gender distinction is made in the applicant’s statement of goods, it is generally understood that fishing vests are often purchased and used by men. As stated above, men who buy fishing vests are not likely to purchase women’s swimsuits, girdles or leotards. Similarly, women who buy swimsuits, girdles and/or leotards are not likely to shop for fishing vests, at least not on the same trip.

Not only are the genders different, but the mindsets are different, too. Generally speaking, fishing vest purchasers are looking for functionality when they shop for their vests.

Swimsuit purchasers, on the other hand, are concerned with personal appearance. There is a different level of sophistication associated with purchasing the respective goods.

STREAMLINE is a Relatively Weak Mark

There are 147 TESS records for marks that include STREAMLINE (Exhibit E) and 93 records where STREAMLINE is the entire mark (Exhibit F). Of these, 48 are currently "live" (Exhibit G) at the Patent and Trademark Office. Hence, the mark is relatively weak and each is entitled to a relatively narrow scope of protection.

Applicant has reviewed some of the "live" registrations and published applications and notes that several pertain to items that may be used or purchased by sports enthusiasts. For example, in a given day, a sports enthusiast may dry his hair with a STREAMLINE hair dryer (Serial No. 76528913) and then put on his STREAMLINE watch (Reg. No. 268977). He will open his STREAMLINE mini blinds (Reg. No. 2435809) while he talks on his STREAMLINE telephone (Reg. No. 2713870). He will ride his STREAMLINE bicycle (Reg. No. 2385900) to the store to purchase STREAMLINE playing cards (Reg. No. 1186693) and STREAMLINE preserved fruit (Serial No. 75461728) for his upcoming camping trip. When he returns home, he turns on his STREAMLINE fan (Reg. No. 1906442) and drinks some STREAMLINE fruit juice (Serial No. 75461728). He finds his backpack and uses a STREAMLINE clasp (Reg. No. 2133055) to close it. TESS copies of the cited registrations and applications are attached as Exhibit H.

Based on this simple story, it is possible for a consumer to see STREAMLINE marked goods throughout a given day. Even a sports enthusiast may see many different examples of STREAMLINE goods. As a result, he is accustomed to seeing many different sources for STREAMLINE goods and, even in the unlikely event he saw STREAMLINE fishing vests and STREAMLINE swimsuits, he would not expect them to originate from the same source.

Finally, Applicant points out that its co-pending application for STREAMLINE for fishing tackle, Serial No. 78276718, was published for opposition in July. Applicant suggests that the present application for the same mark, also for fishing related goods, should likewise be approved.

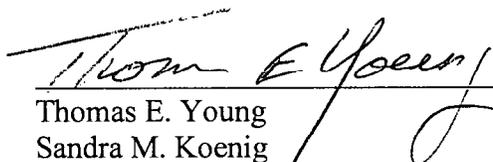

CONCLUSION

Ladies' swimwear, girdles and leotards are far removed from fishing vests. Even in the unlikely event that the respective goods are sold in the same mega sporting goods stores or their retail websites, they would be in different departments encountered by different types of shoppers.

For these reasons, it is respectfully requested that the Examining Attorney withdraw the Section 2(d) refusal and approve the subject application for publication. Early notice to that effect is solicited.
